Rapid detection and resolution to save time, effort and expense.

One of the world's major players for defense, security and aerospace innovation chose Statseeker to interrogate its network, with superb results and outstanding cost savings.

"Statseeker effectively helped us to configure end-to-end monitoring across our network and discover issues which were impacting mission-critical service delivery and contract retention."

The requirement.

The client was finding it difficult to identify the root cause of intermittent issues within their aging network that were impacting on service dependability.

Specific benefits and uses for this client:

- By deploying Statseeker and configuring monitoring end to end across their network, Lockheed Martin uncovered the root cause of their issues with just one week.
- Statseeker found that their intermittent VPN dropouts were due to equipment and communication service-over subscription. The client was able to then pinpoint the issues and upgrade services and equipment to rectify the issues on their network.

Lockheed Martin's opinion:

"Investigating and uncovering this information without Statseeker would have been a lengthy process possibly requiring months of investigative effort and considerable expense."
